To Whom it May Concern

We wholeheartedly recommend Lindsay Wincherauk for the position with your company.

He has grown tremendously over his lengthy career with our company and was one of our team's most valuable and prolific contributors. Lindsay proved himself to be a hard-working, motivated, ambitious, charismatic, and reliable employee. We were sad the once-in-a-century pandemic changed our business's course; unfortunately, our relationship with Lindsay ended because of the pandemic.

Lindsay's contribution to our team was unquestionable, always going above and beyond what was expected of him. Lindsay was a joy to work with and was well-respected by clients, prospects, and coworkers. Lindsay was also respected and known in the industry for his passion and unflinching integrity. In fact, if it weren't for Lindsay's efforts during the economic collapse of 2008, our company likely would not have survived.

Lindsay was a tremendous contributor to our team internally, crafting documents to help our team run more smoothly. Hosting clients and potential franchise owners. Training new hires. Running customer events, including sporting tournaments and branding pools. Writing reference letters for our valued employees and even helping plan our holiday events.

Lindsay is extremely accountable and skilled at working independently while at the same time being proactive about contributing to the team and collaborating with his colleagues. Because Lindsay's so accountable and communicative, I have no doubt that Lindsay will excel on your team.

Lindsay's dedication, willingness to go the extra mile, and intangibles speak for themselves. I can attest Lindsay is an impressive, reliable, consistent, and creative employee who supports his colleagues, takes the initiative, treats everyone respectfully, and is an absolute pleasure to work with.

Without hesitation, I strongly recommend Lindsay Wincherauk for any position in your organization Lindsay has applied for. Lindsay would be a valuable asset in any role.
